

From Our CEO.....

I spent a little time reflecting on my first couple of months here at eLogger, and I keep coming back to a thought that I shared in the ownership change announcement that we sent out last month: the feeling that in taking on this role I've joined a family.

I've spent a lot of time with all the eLoggians in the last few weeks, and I am delighted to report that I'm impressed. First of all, they are, to a person, friendly and caring. Beyond that, they believe in and are deeply dedicated to our mission: making all the logging that our customers do as smooth, as easy, and as useful as possible. For the many of you who have spent time working with our folks, none of this is news. I'm going to do everything I can to make sure it doesn't change.

Now I need to spend some quality time with the other half of the eLogger family: our customers. There is simply no substitute for the depth of understanding available from talking through your successes and challenges face-to-face, ideally on-site.

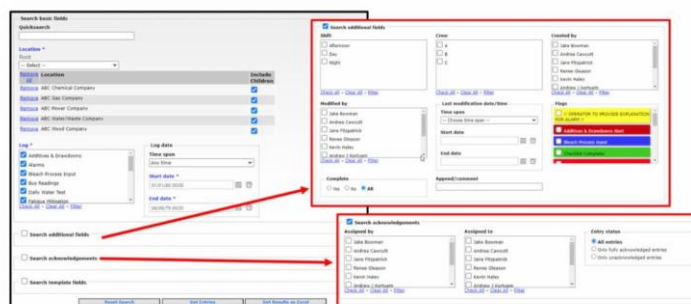

So, I'm making a point of stopping by to see customers whenever I have travel planned, business or pleasure. I'll be in Detroit next week, and I already have a DC trip on the calendar for October. If you're up for a visit, please let us know; while it might take some time for me to get around to some of the more distant customer locales (sorry, Aussies), I'll figure out one way or another how to work in a trip to your area.

Gratitude

Having gratitude for NEW BEGINNINGS is a powerful mindset that can help us approach life with positivity and optimism. When we start something new, whether it's a new job, a new relationship, or a new hobby, it's natural to feel a mix of excitement and nervousness. But by cultivating a sense of gratitude, we can shift our focus towards the opportunities and possibilities that lie ahead, rather than dwelling on any uncertainties or challenges we might face. Being grateful for new beginnings and staying optimistic helps us acknowledge that we have the power to help create a better future not only for ourselves, but for everyone around us.

Since joining eLogger, I have embraced this new chapter in my life with a positive outlook, recognizing that I am fortunate to be in this position and able to provide our clients with a transformative solution that can enhance their work experience. By embracing new beginnings with gratitude, we can approach them with a sense of joy, hope, and optimism, and make the most of the opportunities they bring. I am grateful for the chance to work alongside such passionate and devoted individuals who embody eLogger's highest standards, which have shaped the company into what it is today.

The eLogger team was rocking the swag at the AGA conference in Grapevine, TX. Always a pleasure to meet with our eLogger customers and others new to logging. Big thanks to National Grid for inviting us to speak with them after being partnered with them for more than 15 years.
